THE SILVER PARTY.

By what is taking place concerning the subjects of silver and finance generally can be seen what will ere long produce a union of all the friends of bimetallic money and others wanting a fuller provision made for currency than is now existing. The operation of building a party of politics of such portion of the people is fast culminating and when it is perfected the party will be so large it can elect the next president and probably a majority of the lower branch of congress. We have no purpose whatever to discuss political subjects or to fill the columns of the paper with such discussions, but the fact that such a party is coming into power is apparent to all who have interest in the present position of finances, and it concerns the money of the country more than and other interest of the people. We have few friends in the silver party at this period, for its members are suspicious of a paper published in this city, no matter what its position on the question of silver may be. We are not seeking favor or friendship from such a class of people, nor do we want any place in politics for the paper. All we wish to offer on the question of party is the mere fact that by the opposition by banks and a great class of the people to the full use of silver in the money of the country, they are provoking a great purpose on the part of those they oppose to struggle for a control of the government, and in our opinion the new party will thrive greatly by the present contest by which its members are more affected than any other class, save banks and capitalists having plenty in their possession. The number of the silver people is four-fifths of the population of the country, and they can, if they will, make a clean sweep of two-thirds of the states, and it is probable they will do this in the campaign for president and members of congress. Before the session of congress is adjourned this party will find its full strength, and after it is seen it can make its own place for silver and in all other financial matters it will be able to dictate its terms and will do so.

The past congress, though possessing a majority of silver men, failed to pass a free coinage bill, or to do any act itself concerning the money of the country, for the reason that many of the party were afraid they would make mistakes and produce more trouble for themselves in the future. By the further discussion of the question before the people they have become more informed, and the present financial troubles will far more convince them that only by their own power can they correct what they believe to be wrong in national finances. They are now arousing a formidable party which is to grow to its full extent and have thousands of members in those older states of the country. It will formulate its plan of finance and party platform and in every way prepare for the conflict with the whole opposition on the question of money, and when they are through with the contest the party will be in the ascendant and give the country its further legislation upon the subject of silver for many years.—New York Empire of Finance and Trade.

The news comes over the wire that New York merchants are compelled to pay their employees in silver. Of course they wouldn't think of paying it out at par. They have all along claimed the dollar was only worth 75 cents, and it would be a great swindle on their employees to ask them to accept a silver dollar at full valuation. We are informed, however, that they actually do it, and what is still more surprising the people paid off, are willing to accept the money at par and sorry they don't get more just like it. It seems odd, however, to hear the New Yorkers howl about the 70 cents dollar, and then pay their hands with it at par. Queer people these New York goldbugs.

Our esteemed Carson contemporaries propose to rest the future of the Republican party of this county on the mental condition of Mr. Harper, lately returned from the Reno Asylum.
